

White-glove video conferencing services

Offer fully managed video conferencing to a select group of users, in parallel with your fully self-service operations

Managed video conferencing

Deliver premium service to priority users, such as your management team

Assign one or more operators to centrally schedule these users' calls and keep a close eye on them while they're in progress.

Choose who gets the service

Automatically select key users or specific user groups for dedicated, managed video conferencing

Determine who in your organization will receive the managed service, based on information from your LDAP/Active Directory system.

Self-service in parallel

VQ Conference Manager enables you to deliver managed and self-service video conferencing in parallel

This enables you to grow usage of video conferencing in your organization through self-service for most employees, while still offering priority users a premium 'white-glove' service.
